ROOSEVELT CRITICS LOSE MENTAL POISE

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

On the well established principle that good-natured fair-mindedness is of inestimable value in solving the problems of a democracy such as ours, in which I am a firm believer, President Roosevelt is bound to come out with flying colors in his present battle with backward groups. Splenetic utterances on the anti-Roosevelt side are typified by the outpourings of Lewis Haney in a San Francisco evening paper.

While the chief executive of the nation is his usual buoyant self, declaring no one resents the NRA decision of the Supreme Court, but that one can deplore it, the Haneyes of the country, day after day, are getting off their chests such balderdash as the following:

"The New Dealers, led by Mr. Roosevelt, will either have to find some new blind alley up which to rush or they will have to amend or abolish the constitution."

"Down with dictators, says the court."

"The Cohens and Frankfurters may squirm as they will. We now know that our Supreme Court will see through their words."

"Quite possibly, the subsequent developments may prove highly inflationary. The money and credit manipulators of the New Deal remain untouched."

"If the New Dealers can't give the voter a more abundant life by means of regimentation, monopoly and moratorium, they may swing all the further toward scattering the currency around."

In referring to Professor Cohen and to Professor Frankfurter in other than a respectful way, Haney, who himself is head of the department of economics at New York University, seems to have dropped all the dignity that from time immemorial was supposed to hedge a college teacher about.

Anything termed "liberal" is anathema to Haney, however, and he forgets all his good manners in slighting members of the modern group tending toward liberality, such as Cohen and Frankfurter.

The increase in the price of gold to $35 an ounce and the measures taken to give an impetus to silver mining were intelligent moves on the part of the national administration, which realized plentiful currency was one of the things needed to get us out of the depression. In fact, it has long been admitted by all except the dyed-in-the-wool worshippers of the old political economy fetishes that a prime factor in causing depressions is scarcity of currency. The Haneyes are of the old school continually crying for stabilization, when they know that such stabilization cannot be brought about by one country alone, but that there must be an international agreement.

More favorable reports come in of expansion of placer mining up north. That is all to the good. Placer mining is the kind of gold seeking that a man of medium means can go into and that is just what we need these uncertain days—more men of sufficient capital to show their mettle when the opportunity comes along.

Placer equipment has been landed at Hope by scow and the Tessier, Neal and Richards group is confident of a successful season. The ground has been completely prospected. The men in the group have had ample experience. Tom Tessier was with a company for a long time operating a hydraulic plant; and the other two have been mining in Alaska for quite a while.

Before taking over the ground a careful investigation was made and the deal concluded for taking it over when the men became satisfied as to its promise.

The Pioneer Mine, Bridge River district, British Columbia, according to the report of the general superintendent, will increase its estimated tonnage of a year ago, though the grade of ore will be slightly lower than expected. After deductions for depreciation, depletion and taxes, net profit stood at $1,593,640 for the last fiscal year. The Pioneer is the richest producer of its size in the world.

Devane Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hicks of San Diego avenue, is still confined to St. Lukes Hospital, where he was taken several weeks ago after badly injuring his arm when he caught it in the washing machine.

The arm was so badly hurt that the doctors find it necessary to graft skin on the injured member.

OUR MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION HAS MEET AND FEED

Protests Made On Slowness
Of Completion Of Street
Work On Mission

The regular meeting of the Daly City Merchants Association was held on Wednesday evening at the City Hall.

The committee on securing grounds for the annual picnic reported that arrangements had been made to hold the affair this year on Sunday, August 11, at Oak Cove Park.

A general committee on arrangements was appointed as follows: Messrs. Pitschke, Williamson, Vireno, Bartoli, Wells, Taillon, Clanton, Rugeri, Twisten, Selmi, Sundermann, Fahy, O'Keefe, Callen, Mather and Pavlos. This committee will meet in the near future and outline complete plans.

The committee with regard to securing a postoffice in Daly City independent of San Francisco, reported a letter had been received from Congressman J. J. McGrath.

He advised a petition be circulated for signatures of business people and residents here and forwarded to the postmaster general at Washington. This will be done at an early date.

Complaints were made that supplies for Daly City Schools were being purchased elsewhere without giving our local merchants an opportunity to bid. This was denied by members of the two schools boards present, they asserting that the matter had not been officially brought to the attention of the boards of trustees.

Considerable complaint was heard in regard to the delay of the work of laying pavements and car tracks on Mission street, merchants protesting that the slowness was detrimental to business along the thoroughfare.

The secretary was instructed to forward communications to the Market Street Railway and the Union Paving Company, demanding that the work be speeded up. A committee was appointed consisting of President Mather and Vice President Pitschke to appear before the City Council and ask that body to demand of the two companies that they make efforts to have the work completed as soon as possible by putting more men on the job.

The members and guests repaired to the Masonic Hall for a dinner after completion of the business session.

URGES COUNTY PAY MONEY INTO AIRBASE FUND

Board Of Supervisors Told
Moral Obligation Exists
To Make Offer Good

Supervisor Walter M. High, Burlingame, informed the Board of Supervisors that the county should pay $50,000 toward the Sunnyvale airbase purchase. He claimed that San Mateo County entered into an agreement with the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, and this agreement should be kept.

Charles Cadman, a director of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce appeared before the board. He explained that San Mateo County had agreed to pay the $50,000 over a period of five years, at the rate of $10,000 a year and was morally obligated to do so.

"I feel we owe the $50,000," said Supervisor High. "I don't want to burden the taxpayers, but I agree with Mr. Cadman that we ought to make good our pledge. If we are not going to make good now, what will be the use of us making pledges in the future?"

On motion of Supervisors High and Fred E. Beer, San Mateo, the board agreed to further consideration of the matter at its next meeting two weeks hence.

VISIT EXPOSITION

Mrs. G. Lowden of Winchester street and daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Hutchings of Roosevelt avenue, and sister, Mrs. Rose Loomis of Peoria street, left on Tuesday for a nine day motor trip through Southern California. They will visit the exposition at San Diego.

How They Ride at the San Diego Exposition

This bevy of California beauties appears to be enjoying the ride in one of the Ford V-8 tractor-powered, special designed semi-trailer buses that are carrying the visitors to the California-Pacific International exposition now open in San Diego. The buses, operated by the San Diego Railways company, are 45 feet long, eight feet wide and eight feet high. Each is painted in bright colors and bears the name of a bird of brilliant plumage.

LOCAL THEATER TO FILM PERFECT MUSICAL COMEDY

Excellent Dancing, Singing
And Wonderful Gowns
Will Be Featured

Acclaimed as the perfect musical comedy, "Roberta," comes to the screen from RKO-Radio as a three-star attraction with Irene Dunne, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

This film will be shown at the Daly City theatre for three days, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 9, 10 and 11.

With Miss Dunne singing Jerome Kern song hits, including the famous "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," and Astaire and Miss Rogers whirling through "Roberta's" dazzling dance routines said to outshine those of "The Gay Divorcee," the picture also presents a brilliant array of feminine fashions displayed by a bevy of America's most beautiful girls.

Double romance features the story which centers about the hilarious situation of an All-American football player inheriting a gown shop in Paris. Miss Dunne and Randolph Scott carry the principal heart interest, with Astaire and Miss Rogers mixing badinage and gay comedy with love palpitations.

Included in the supporting cast of "Roberta" are such favorites as Helen Westley, Victor Varconi, Claire Dodd, Ferdinand Munier and Adrian Rosley. William Seiter directed.

On the same program will be shown "The Last Wilderness." Wednesday will be China Night.

YOUNGSTER HAS ODD EXPERIENCE

Archie Cassingham of Bellevue avenue had a unique experience, Tuesday evening of this week. Young Cassingham saw some marbles in the catch basin of the sewer in the General Pershing School yard, so he stepped down into the hole. After descending he became wedged in and was unable to get out.

The boy's young companions tried to help him out, but were unsuccessful. Two men in the neighborhood came to his rescue and pulled him to the surface. Archie was very tearful but happy when brought above ground again.

BLOOD STOCK TURNS OUT FINE BARGAIN

By J. W. MARCHBANK

That values of well bred runners are steadily going up was indicated recently by satisfactory prices at a paddock sale at Belmont Park. Young and mature gallopers from well known establishments were offered and, after spirited bidding, were led away by their hopeful purchasers.

What clever judgment will do was clearly demonstrated when A. G. Vanderbilt paid $4500 for Good Gamble of the M. L. Schwartz consignment. A few days later the three year old filly lived up to her name by scoring in a good field in the Acorn Stakes and earning for her owner $7325. There were fifteen of the gentler sex in the Acorn.

The blood lines of Good Gamble are interesting, as she is a grand daughter of Man O' War's sire, Fair Play, through the popular stock horse, Chance Play, and from a daughter of the Kentucky Derby winner, Omar Khayyam. We find Hurley Burley, a mare mentioned in last week's discussion of the carrying on of old lines up to the present, in the pedigree of the miss that appears destined to make quite a name for herself.

The highest price at the sale was brought by the two year old Bold Venture, also in the Schwartz consignment. The well known B. B. stable was forced to bid $7100 before getting the colt, a chestnut son of St. Germans. The young fellow comes from some of the best strains of England and of this country.

Ultimus, sire of Possible, dam of Bold Venture, has been going strong for a number of years. There are two outstanding things about Ultimus—he was tremendously inbred, being by a Domino stallion, from a Domino mare, and, furthermore, he never started in a race. Over at Heather Farm I have an inbred Domino in King Heather; so it gives me more than passing pleasure to hear of the continuing strength of the great American family.

NEW AND LARGER MAIN INSTALLED

Improvement By Daly City
Water Department Will Aid Fire Pressure

The Daly City Municipal Water Company under the supervision of Arthur J. Bodien completed the work on a 650 feet length of six inch main to replace a four inch one running from Citrus and Westlake avenues along Mission street in the path of the new Market Street Railway tracks now under construction.

The completed project adds much to the efficiency of the local water department and will double the capacity of the pressure from the reservoir.

Local men were employed on the project.

GIRL BREAKS LEG

Pearl Caine of Bellevue avenue suffered a double fracture of the leg Monday evening while trying out her new skates in front of the family home.

The injured member was put in a cast at St. Lukes Hospital with Dr. Skanky in attendance. Pearl's many friends will be sorry to hear she will be confined to her home for the next month or more.

WANTS TO KNOW MORE ABOUT NEW WORK ON BRIDGES

Supervisor Witt Thinks Coin
For Purpose Has Been Spent Unnecessarily

Demand for an investigation of bridge building operations by the county engineering department in the Tunitas-Lobitas section of San Mateo County was made at Monday's session of the board by Supervisor Albert Witt, of Daly City, after he charged the activity had taken on the appearance of a "racket."

Witt declared that bridges had been torn down and completely rebuilt when a few hundred dollars of repairs would have sufficed and declared the purpose apparently was to "keep the work crew going."

Fred Comba, attorney for County Engineer Carl Scott, called the board's attention to the fact that Richard Emig, road superintendent for Scott, was in the meeting and could be called upon for any explanation.

Witt was fired by Comba's remarks and asked Chairman Manuel Francis to rule him out of order.

County Executive Kellogg was requested to secure an accounting of how $5000 appropriated last year for this purpose had been spent.

The supervisors were informed by the Bayshore sanitary district directors that all garbage dumping permits issued by the district had been revoked, effective 90 days from the date of the meeting on May 31.

On motion of Supervisor Witt, the data was referred to District Attorney Gilbert D. Ferrell, with instructions to do everything possible to help the Bayshore district prevent the dumping of San Francisco garbage in this county.

Justice of the Peace Wade H. Clay, Daly City, was refused mileage funds for travel between Daly City and his court at South San Francisco.

After vigorous controversy in which the district attorney was accused of being inconsistent, a fund of $1260 was approved for the district attorney's office.

The board voted to expend $1600 for rights of way for the Pescadero Creek road.

Creation of a sewer maintenance district at Montara was referred to the district attorney.

Two labor projects in the Coastside district were held up by the board when Supervisor Witt objected to the signature of County Engineer Carl R. Scott on the applications for the projects.

As a number of the supervisors expect to be away on vacation, no meeting will be held until Monday, June 17.

MUCH DAMAGE TO HOLY ANGELS PARISH HOUSE

Early Morning Blaze Proves
Necessity For New City
Fire Improvements

Friday morning at 1:20 o'clock the Colma Volunteer Fire Department and Station No. 6 of the Daly City department received an alarm for a fire in the parish house at Colma. The house is a large frame structure of sixteen or eighteen rooms and the fire had been smoldering for three or four hours before being discovered.

The Daly City police saw that it had too much headway for the two companies there, and turned in a Daly City alarm from box 32.

Chief Chesney, on arrival, worked in conjunction with Chief M. Balastera of Colma and Assistant Chiefs Hansen and Bodien.

The fact of Daly City installing a few hydrants near this location helped the departments a great deal, but it was an hour's hard fight before the fire was controlled.

The shortest lead of hose was 600 feet and one line was brought over 800 feet; the first line laid was used to keep the tank of the Colma pumps full so the men could pump directly on the fire.

Besides the two companies that answered the first call, Stations Nos. 1, 2 and 3 of Daly City also got streams on the conflagration.

The building was badly damaged in the upper story, as there were no fire breaks of any kind in the attic, this allowing the fire to mushroom over the entire space between ceiling and roof.

It is to be hoped that when the proposition to lay an extension of our water mains and fire alarm to this section of the city comes up on the ballot, the people will support it.

"COCKY" DRIVERS SHOULD BE CURBED

Another type of road hog—the kind who when traveling on a boulevard or arterial refuses to yield the right of way to traffic approaching from intersecting roads and streets—is claiming the attention of the California highway patrol.

His kind is numerous, according to a survey made by Chief E. Raymond Cato. Once he gets on a street or highway protected by stop signs he apparently is possessed by the idea that he has a God-given right over all other traffic and refuses to budge an inch or slow down for the fraction of a second.

"And he is dead wrong," commented Cato. "He does not have the right of way. Once a driver approaching a boulevard or arterial street has complied with the law to stop and to make reasonable allowance for safety, he is allowed to proceed.

"It is unreasonable to expect such a driver to stand there forever waiting for a chance to cross or break into the stream of traffic. Drivers on boulevards and arterials approaching intersections are expected to exercise a due amount of courtesy.

"It is sheer discourtesy for drivers on boulevards to assume such lordly attitudes. It is their lack of courtesy that marks them as road hogs."

Highway patrolmen have orders to hand citations to drivers displaying discourtesy to others, Cato said.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

By Chief A. P. Chesney

The members of the department doing the inspection for fire hazards should also take note of the location of shutoffs for gas, oil and electricity, as in some fires it is very essential that these should be shut off immediately.

He should note all heating apparatus; also storage of all inflammable material, all openings of stairways and elevators and see that these are protected by railings or doors, also any kind of fire protection equipment kept by private individuals.

While in buildings, especially stores, mills, factories or public halls, he should examine all exits and study the best way to get persons out who might be there in case of a fire; also how the fire would travel in that particular building and the best line of extinguishing the fire.

In the case of public halls and schools, all doors leading to the outside should open outwardly and never be locked while the building is occupied.

He should also note ways of ventilating the building in case of a fire. This is a very important feature in fire fighting; in some fires it is impossible for the men to get to the seat of the fire until some ventilating is done, and also care must be taken that in ventilating you are not opening up a draft that will let the fire get a better start or get away from you entirely.

In a case of this kind it is a rule of the department not to open up for a fire until there is at least one line of hose filled ready for use.

CARIBOO MAKES FINE SHOWING IN ITS PRODUCTION

Operations Leave a Fairly Good Profit As Shown By Recent Report

In writing of the report of one of the northern mining district's principal producers, Sidney Norman says: Eighth annual report of Cariboo Gold Quartz Mining Co., Cariboo district, was issued recently.

During the year ended January 31, 1935, the mill was increased to capacity of 100 tons daily in November and a total of 28,835 tons run through. Value of bullion produced was $381,851, from 11,014 ozs. gold and 1163 ozs. silver.

Heads ran 4 oz. per ton, with tailings at 0.02336 per ton and recovery of 94.24 per cent.

Mill run was 96.7 per cent of maximum time.

Tonnage compares with 21,668 in the previous year.

Balance sheet shows cash on hand $124,100.

Bullion in transit, $51,581.

Supplies on hand, $51,139.

With sundries bringing total to $231,852.

Capital expenditures for buildings, machinery and equipment have reached $410,899, with depreciation deduction of $90,781, bringing the figure down to $320,117.

Liabilities were $61,111, including balance of $25,000 due later upon Cariboo claim; $17,897 accounts payable; $10,112 wages payable and reserve for taxes, $8101.

Gross profit and income was $128,970 with deduction of $28,759 for administration and other expense, leaving profit before depreciation, depletion and taxes at $100,210.

Latter deductions, with development written off reached $70,003, leaving net profit at $30,206.

Report of President W. B. Burnett points out that approximately one-half of the net profit was earned in the last quarter of the year and that operating costs have been reduced in all departments, with still further economies possible with milling capacity at further increased level.

Ground is being broken for mill additions and it is expected that first step to 150 tons will be completed by August.

R. R. Rose, M. E., general superintendent, places ore reserves at 99,676 tons, with average gold content of .416 oz. gold per ton, with 43,068 tons in the Rainbow fault zone and 35,158 tons in the Sanders zone.

Development during the year reached 8806 feet of cross-cutting, 1989

C., managing director of Hedley Mascot Gold Mines, owning the famous Mascot Fraction an other property, adjoining that of Kelowna Exploration Co., Hedley, Osoyoos district, who has just returned to Vancouver from California, announces that financial arrangements of the company have been completed and that every effort will now be made to put the property into production at the earliest possible moment.

Wm. J. Asselstine, for 14 years mill superintendent of Premier Gold Mining Co., Portland Canal district, is on the ground selecting mill site and perfecting plans, while a corps of engineers is running surveys to locate best site for the 2800-foot tunnel, which will reach the ore bodies through Mascot ground.

E. J. Gibson & Co., members Vancouver Stock Exchange, one of the most insistent "boosters" of silver in the Northwest, are doing their bit towards encouraging general use of silver dollars.

Their offices would have made the heart of the late William J. Bryan glad. A large china-silver dollar adorns the ground-floor window, while employees are being paid in the new silver dollars; customers are receiving them in change and the blackboard is filled with all kinds of information upon the subject.

E. J. Gibson, head of the firm, knows what silver has done for the upbuilding of Spokane and also appreciates what it will do for British Columbia in general and Vancouver in particular under improved price conditions.

Barkerville and Quesnel are on tip-toe waiting for the best season the Cariboo has faced for many years, according to B. Galloway.

So bad are the roads at the present time, however, that it is only possible to travel at night or very early in the morning.

Mr. Galloway's trip to Barkerville came as a result of word received from the foreman of Richfield-Cariboo property, where a fissure vein, showing free gold, was crosscut recently, in the Bald Mountain crosscut, which is now in 2118 feet from portal. Contact with Tom Reilly and associates of Barkerville for another 500 feet was let by Mr. Galloway while he was at the camp.

"I wish," he said, "Vancouver people could visit Barkerville and feel the enthusiasm and confidence exhibited by the residents of the old camp. The strike on our property seemed to electrify the whole camp, and everyone is confident of the ultimate success of the undertaking by which famous 'Old Baldy,' as Bald Mountain, is called in the district, is being pierced.

The present contract, it is anticipated, will reach the main objective—a series of quartz veins outcropping on the surface.

Agreement between Gold Belt Mines, Sheep Creek district, and North American Mines Inc., of Boston, was finally closed when directors met with Robert Livermore, Quincy A. Shaw and Gratton Lynch, mining geologist, representing the eastern concern.

The deal involves eventual expenditure of $217,000 in return for operating control and has met all requirements of the Vancouver Stock Exchange and provincial Securities Act.

As requested by shareholders at the annual meeting, option period was cut down to two years and it was also arranged that the million shares of additional capital to be issued will be placed in escrow.

Present balance in Gold Belt treasury, amounting to 87,000 shares, will be purchased outright for cash. The Boston company will expend $100,000 before receiving any portion of the newly-created shares.

At an organization meeting of directors of Bayonne Consolidated Mines, which has just taken over the Bayonne mine, at the head of Summit Creek, 23 miles west of Lake Kootenay, the following officers and directors were elected:

President, R. W. Bruhn, M. L. A. Sicomous, who is also president of Sheep Creek Gold Mines and Clubine-Comstock Gold Mines; vice president, A. C. Frost Jr.; secretary-treasurer, W. A. Sutton, barrister, Vancouver; A. C. Frost Sr., Seattle; J. R. Pyper, Kamloops.

A. C. Frost Jr., formerly of Chicago and New York, will have charge of the interests of his father and will open offices in this city. His family will join him here in a short time. He is now on a trip to the Bayonne and other mines in the Nelson district, accompanied by President R. W. Bruhn and R. W. Pyper.

Development on an increased scale is indicated for Goldside Mining Co., on Taylor Basin property, north of Bridge River district, as result of a test shipment of 4643 pounds of ore to Tacoma Smelter which is reported to have returned 1.74 ounces gold, or the equivalent of $59 per ton at current prices.

HAPPENINGS HERE ELEVEN YEARS AGO

Some Items Gleaned From Copies Of The Record Of Decade Ago

Mrs. A. L. Stockton and daughters Marjorie and Florence left for Big Basin on Thursday.

Peter Pavlos, popular and genial restaurant man, has become the owner of a 1922 Dodge car.

Mrs. F. W. Hoadley and Parker and Clara leave Saturday for Ben Lomond for a long vacation in the mountains.

George Riddell returned on Monday from a fishing trip in Trinity county. He brought back a fine 8-pound trout, as the best catch of the trip.

Mrs. J. E. A. Miller will leave within a few days for a visit to her friends in Olympia, Wash. She will travel by boat, but expects to make the return journey by auto with her son, Lloyd Bloom.

Roosevelt avenue is the scene of the first operations in the Crocker tract paving project, and the residents of the district felt wonderfully elated as they saw the contractor's men getting down to business.

Crocker Chapter No. 382, O. E. S., enjoyed a pleasant evening last Monday on the occasion of Conductress and Associate Conductress Night. After the business of the evening had been disposed of, a clever play was given in excellent style by several members of the order. The cast included Mrs. Parkinson, Miss Robertson, Miss Kahrau, Mrs. R. H. Turner, Miss Alice Elmers, Mrs. L. T. Riddell and Louis John. Miss Eva Smith Hackett gave two humorous recitations before the play.

Mrs. A. Hilton was hostess at a very pretty double shower on Wednesday, June 4, at her home on Crocker avenue. A delicious repast was served and the decorations were pink and blue. A cradle with two kiewpies swung over a large cake decorated with storks, and the favors were stork baskets. Delicious refreshments were served. The guests of honor received many pretty baby gifts as well as good wishes. The afternoon was spent in music and in writing messages to Mrs. W. G. Fuhr, a member of the club. The time was all too short for such a delightful afternoon.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Little Known Matters That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: What would a thirteen month calendar be like and what would its drawbacks be?

Answer: Each month and each week would begin on Sunday with exactly four weeks to each month, and there would be 28 days in each month. The new month would probably be inserted between June and July. Twenty-eight times thirteen would give us 364 days. An extra holiday, New Years Day, which would not appear in the calendar, would give the necessary 365 days. Leap year, a second holiday, would be inserted. Under the new proposed system, there would be no need for a separate chart for each month.

Drawbacks to this change would be: Difficult in dividing the year in halves or quarters, the rent would be paid thirteen times instead of twelve, and every month we'd have Friday, the thirteenth.

Question: Why do we call a "stiff hat" a Derby?

Answer: The stiff felt hat, with the rounded crown and narrow brim, is said to have received its name from the Earl of Derby, and was first worn at the Earl of Derby's horse race.

Question: How did the greyhound get his name?

Answer: The name appears to have no reference to color, but is derived from the Icelandic word "grey"—meaning "dog."

Question: Where is salt principally found?

Answer: In sea water in solution, in salt springs and in the form of salt rock. Rock salt forms the most principal and most common source of supply. It is located in all parts of the world and near the surface. The largest deposits in the United States are in the states of Michigan, New York, Ohio, Utah, Louisiana, Kansas, Texas and California.

Question: Who was William Lewis Manly?

Answer: One of the forty miners who with his party suffered the tortures of Death Valley. Manly and Rogers went in search of aid. They came back to the forlorn camp to find only a few left, most of the party having left camp on scouting tours, never returned. "For more than half a century William Lewis Manly lived to tell the story of Death Valley in '49, and when he died in the autumn of 1901, California lost one of her true and tried pioneer citizens, loved by his neighbors, an honor to the commonwealth."

FOR UNEVEN BRAKES

It is not always a matter of unequal adjustment when the brakes fail to perform in the desired fashion after they have received service station attention.

It is impossible to equalize adjustment if the drums are warped or scored, which, in this day of high brake temperatures is more of a commonplace than many car owners realize. It is better to have the drums checked and replaced, if necessary, than to try to get an equal adjustment under the circumstances.

Drums Do Get Hot

Just how good are brake drums is indicated by the temperatures which they are called upon to withstand without warping or scoring under conditions of extreme service.

When making a quick stop from a high speed or when the brakes are used to hold the car on a long down grade, the drum temperature may reach as high as 1000 or 1200 degrees. It must be well made to withstand such service—and it is.

LEADERSHIP IN PENINSULA LEAGUE IS DEADLOCKED

Home Team Tied At Four All-Sunday Playoff Is Due For Hot Game

(By Al Gould)

The home team journeyed to Burlingame Sunday to combat the strong Burlingame Blues nine in the last game of the first half of the Peninsula League, and, with the mighty Sullivan master of the situation as usual, the local nine scored an easy victory to tie for the league leadership.

As is the case in all ball games, a winning pitcher needs sterling support, both on the field and at bat, and once again his team-mates showed Matty that the punch was there. We cannot say too much for "Pete" Dinneen's sensational fielding; nor would we err by being loud in praise of the "grand old man," Sammy Hawley, who stepped into the spot left vacant by Petroch's inability to play—and what a job he did! In five times at bat, he connected for a double and three singles, stealing the limelight as the batting sensation of the game. It would be unfair not to mention that the pitching ace of the home team chased two of his team-mates across the plate with his four-base clout in the fourth inning.

Bill Kirby, the hustling hot corner lad, initiated one of the fastest double plays of the season, being greatly aided by the old stand-by "Tudo" Carrasco. Vasquez handled eight tough chances without a mishap, so all in all the infield was excellent, both on offense and defense.

A winning battery, Sullivan and Kondeff, supported by an infield which is second to none, and three of the best fly-hawks in the game—fans, what a game is to be played on Sunday afternoon at Jefferson diamond when our home team meets the Bear Photo Club in the play-off for the league leadership.

The play by play report shows the high caliber of baseball our lads are playing. Don't they deserve your support?

FIRST INNING

Daly City—Kirby out, Jennings to Burrows. Carrasco out, Gowdy to Burrows. Maloney out, Cavaglia to Burrows. No hits, no runs, no errors. Blues—Howard walked. Gowdy bunted; Howard out at second, Sullivan to Vasquez. Marino hit one at Sullivan, who knocked it down and retired Gowdy at second, to Vasquez. Bogle fled to Albrecht. No hits, no runs, no errors.

SECOND INNING

Daly City—Vasquez fanned. Hawley singled to left. Dinneen singled to center, sending Hawley to third. Albrecht fanned. Kondeff popped to Gowdy. Two hits, no runs, no errors. Blues—Jennings grounded to Dinneen, who retired the runner, unassisted, by a sensational stop. Butler lined one down the first base line, and again Dinneen retired the runner unassisted. Burrows popped to Kirby. No hits, no runs, no errors.

THIRD INNING

Daly City—Sullivan out, Burrows unassisted. Kirby popped to Jennings. Carrasco was hit by a pitched ball. Maloney popped to Gowdy. No hits, no runs, no errors.

FOURTH INNING

Daly City—Vasquez singled past Marino down the third base line. Hawley slammed a single between third and short, his second of the day. Dinneen fouled two in attempting to sacrifice, and crossed up the opposition, dumping the third pay ball. Cavaglia, in his haste to get Dinneen at first, over threw to Burrows, Vasquez scoring. Hawley going to third and Dinneen taking second. Albrecht popped to Marino, Kondeff fanned. Sullivan brought the fans to their feet when he smashed a home run to right center, chasing Hawley and Dinneen across the plate ahead of him. Kirby fled to Butler. Three hits, four runs, one error.

to left, Albrecht being caught at the plate when he attempted to score from first, Bogle to Arnold. Sullivan fled to Jennings. Kirby fled to Butler, retiring the side. Four hits, two runs, no errors.

Blues—Bogle popped to Kirby. Jennings fled to Maloney. Butler fled to Hawley. No hits, no runs, no errors.

SEVENTH INNING

Daly City—Carrasco singled to center. Maloney got a life when Gowdy bungled. Vasquez walked, loading the bases. Hawley got his fourth straight hit, scoring Carrasco. Maloney was caught between third and home on this play. At this stage of the game the fans were given a thrill when the entire Blue team was required to put out Maloney. The umpires, were about to request Manager Martin to throw in the towel, but Maloney gave up for the want of breath. Dinneen sacrificed, Cavaglia to Burrows. Albrecht fanned. Two hits, one run, one error.

Blues—Burrows popped to Kirby. Arnold out, Vasquez to Dinneen. Cavaglia fanned. No hits, no runs, no errors.

Clean Fenders With Suds

Heavy suds still are the most effective means of cleansing the under parts of the car's fenders. Suds can be made by dissolving two pounds of soap in a gallon of water.

It is well to rinse the parts thoroughly afterward to prevent any damage to the surface by the soap solution. A liberal flushing with a hose will accomplish this end. Do not have too much pressure on the hose.

Hub Cap Needed

Driving without a front hub cap may cause serious damage on some makes of cars.

On certain models the hub cap holds the grease for the front wheel bearings. When the cap is off grease may run out and dirt and grit may get into the bearings.

FEDERAL GAS TAX REMOVAL SOUGHT

Statement Made It Is Only Duplication of Levies Collected By States

Passed by Congress in 1932 as a temporary measure for one year only, but twice extended, the federal gasoline tax of one cent per gallon is approaching its latest expiration date, June 30. Nation-wide efforts against any further extension of the tax are in progress.

The California delegation in Congress are being urged to lend their support to the movement for abolition of the tax.

It is reported the first year the federal gasoline tax cost the American motoring public $62,839,826, becoming effective in June, 1932. In 1933 the total amounted to $181,125,987, and in 1934 it was $170,109,269.

The original rate was one cent per gallon, which was increased to one and a half cents in 1933, and reduced to one cent in 1934.

That the federal tax was intended only as a temporary measure is declared to be substantiated by the fact that it was adopted reluctantly in the face of widespread opposition and for only one year, whereas all other taxes imposed under the Revenue Act were for two years. It is also emphasized that the federal gasoline tax is the only universal duplicating tax in existence, all the states having imposed a gasoline tax long before the federal government entered the field.

Indicating the extent of the demand that the tax shall not again be extended, the assertion is made that twenty-one state legislatures have sent memorials to Congress demanding that the tax be abolished and that nearly three hundred organizations, including motorists, civic, commercial, and farm groups, have passed resolutions to the same effect.

As Stephen hung up the telephone receiver, chuckling, Miss Ordway brought in his mail. In it he found a registered parcel that had been through the custom house, with duty prepaid on it. It contained the finest and most expensive combination stop-watch and time-piece he had ever seen, and a note that read:

"Dear Doctor Burt:

"I know it would not be an fait for me to ask you for a bill for professional services, for I realize that what you did for me was done as one human being to another and quite without thought of financial remuneration. Moreover, I prefer to remain forever your debtor. You will never know what you have done for me. Christ, restoring life to the dead son of the widow of Nain, performed no greater miracle than did you in restoring life and happiness to my dead soul. I would try to thank you if words were not so pitifully inadequate to express the profundity of my gratitude. Will you not please accept the enclosed trifle as a token of that gratitude, and add one more debt to those already owed you by me?

"It is not easy to learn to live with my secret, now that I have found it out. I am trying to regard the past as one hark back in memory to a very serious illness. Some days, when I have achieved sufficient courage I am curious about my other self, evolved from darkness. There are blanks in my life. Perhaps you can fill them in. Perhaps you will not care to, knowing that they are better left blank. I do not think, however, that I was ever terribly wicked. If so, I have no recollection of it.

"Your grateful
"Penelope."

"Old Mother Nature is speaking to Penelope," he soliloquized, and replaced his father's old watch with the one Penelope had sent him. "Give Nature a chance—give her an even break—and she'll prove herself the greatest physician of all."

After some consideration he wrote the following to Penelope:

"Come home and let me iron out the few remaining wrinkles so your life will be as smooth as you could wish. The watch is wonderful. Thanks and I think you are very wonderful, too. Love as usual.

"Stephen."

It occurred to him to tuck that last phrase in for good measure. Love—not merely the love of a man for a woman but the love that is a fine friendship—was, he knew, very necessary to Penelope. She must, he knew, be assured that in all the world somebody really cared. Nobody knew better than he the wreckage that kindness and love denied can make of human lives; never a day passed without leaving him evidence of this.

He was not getting quite his little slice of life. Money, success, the joy of accomplishment, professional standing, the respect of his colleagues, he had, plus some good friends and true. But he was lonely.

He decided not to dine alone. It would be far better to drop in unannounced on Lanny and Dan, take pot luck for dinner.

CHAPTER XII

It was late fall. Stephen had just returned from his vacation; it was his first day back at the office and he was a bit rebellious at the flood of patients that awaited him. He finally got rid of the last one at five-thirty, and following his custom, settled back for a pipeful of tobacco, when Miss Ordway entered.

"There's a young lady calling," she announced. "She says she is Miss Elliott."

"I don't know her, Miss Ordway. A prospective patient?"

"I imagine she is. I didn't ask."

"Tell her it's beyond office hours and suggest that he call during office hours tomorrow."

Miss Ordway departed to deliver the message, but returned presently to say that the young lady begged to be permitted to see him. "Very well, show her in," he acquiesced irritably, "but remember Professor Finnegan if she stays too long."

Miss Elliott entered. Stephen rose and waved her to a chair. Then: "Well, Miss Elliot, what seems to be the trouble?"

"Does my general appearance indicate to you, even remotely, that I am one who requires the services of a neurologist and psychiatrist?" she asked him.

Stephen smiled. "Scarcely. What is it, then? You want a subscription to something?"

"How astute you are, Doctor. I am soliciting subscriptions to a fund designed to furnish expert medical attention to a very deserving public servant.

I refer to Detective Sergeant Patrick Joseph Flynn."

"I know him, Miss Elliott. What's wrong with Flynn?"

"His blood pressure seems to be very high—"

"Nothing doing, Miss Elliott," Stephen interrupted. "I admit I sold this terrible Flynn the notion that he had high blood pressure, but I did that for a reason I do not care to explain. The man has the arteries of a boy. What's Flynn to you? And just who might you be?"

"You have my name. What I want to know is this: Are you ashamed to take me out to dinner?"

"No, of course not," Stephen blinked.

"I appear eminently respectable?"

"Quite. In fact, a most presentable lady."

"Not so homely, eh?"

"On the contrary. But I shall not go to dinner with you."

"Why?"

"Well, while the experience might be delightful, I think you're too pert."

The lovely face drooped sorrowfully. "Oh, Stephen, would you be that mean to poor little Penelope?"

"Good god of love!" Stephen almost yelled. "Are you my little Penelope?"

"Of course I am. Oh, Stephen, you great booby, not to recognize me!"

He came from behind his desk, took her fiercely by the shoulders and gazed down at her, too amazed to speak.

"That's a pretty good second-hand nose, isn't it?" Penelope queried, with just the suspicion of a quaver in her tone. "Don't tell me you disapprove. I adore it myself."

Very soberly he quoted:

"And you, my sweet Penelope, out there somewhere you wait for me,

With buds of roses in your hair, and kisses on your mouth."

"Oh, Stevie!" she whispered. "Take one."

He took three, and Penelope rested contentedly in his arms.

He hugged her frantically. "My dear, dear girl," he declared, "if I were a praying man I'd get right down on my knees and send up a prayer of gratitude to Omnipotence. You're well?"

"Oh, yes, indeed I am," the girl cried with a catch in her voice. "I'm happy—not perfectly happy but—hug me! Oh, Stephen, Stephen, it was so hard not to come back when I received your cablegram. But I had to fight things out and I didn't want to come home until I could meet you bravely, Stephen, are you truly glad to see me again?"

"I am," he answered, and marveled that he should be so glad as he was.

He took three, and Penelope rested contentedly in his arms.

the same. I wrote you a meticulous account of your illness, so you understand all about that, but what I want you to know now is that no power on earth can ever discover you for the purpose of making you pay the penalty for the misdeeds of Nance Belden. By the way, where did you get that name?"

"I had forgotten who I was and I had to have a name. So I picked that one out of a book."

"The new nose has helped wonderfully, hasn't it?"

She nodded. "I do not want to hide from people now, Stephen."

"You must not. That would be depriving the people of the sight of something very sweet and wonderful."

The eager wistfulness in her fine eyes thrilled him. "Do you think I'm sweet and wonderful, Stephen? I want you to, most of all."

"My dear, come here," he commanded, "and sit on my knees just as you used to do when you were Nance Belden and a simple child of impulse—when you hadn't the least compunction about making love to me."

Penelope flushed, but nevertheless obeyed. Stephen drew her cheek down to his. "I want to tell you something," he murmured. "The first night I saw you, my heart went out to you. And when Dan told me how it all happened, I had a tremendous admiration for your courage and wit. I love brainy people, Penelope, and you have brains. I knew what was wrong with you and I felt so sorry for you, my poor dear; I wanted to help you more than I ever wanted to help any human being. I understood all about you; you were just a little lost atom crying so pitifully to be saved, to know love and protection and happiness, that you developed into a game, and Lanny and Dan and I just had to play it to the finish."

"Have you thought of me sometimes?"

"Often than I cared to admit to myself. Penelope, I know, all about you. In this box on my desk are all the records. Look at them, Penelope dear."

"Then you bothered to find out everything—you cared for me just a little bit?"

"A considerable bit—just how much I didn't realize until now. I want you for my patient always, or as long as we both live."

"What do you mean, Stephen?"

"I'm clumsy, I dare say, but I have more than a suspicion that I've been in love with you—and now that I have you back I'm quite certain I love you enough to want you to marry me. I think my love for you will grow with the years that we are going to spend together."

"And you'll never think back—never be ashamed of me—never regret your course? And are you sure this isn't just pity?"

"Pity is akin to love. It started in pity, sweetheart—and it's growing every minute. Last work, my Penelope, but I'm not afraid to trust my instinct. You're my woman. You love me, a little, do you not?"

"Why," said Penelope soberly, "I've loved you from the day Dan brought me to this office. You were kind to me, and you didn't seem to see my nose. I was so grateful—and ever since I've been waiting out there, somewhere."

She hugged him fiercely. "Oh, Stevie, darling, all the rest of my life I shall devote to you. I'll not be oppressive with my love and I'll not be possessive, but I do want the task of adding to your happiness. I know what happiness is. I can appreciate even a little bit—and I'll never forget to cherish what you gave me and give back all I can."

"That way happiness lies. You seem to have the formula," he replied gravely.

The door from Miss Ordway's office opened and the nurse looked in.

"I'm sorry, Doctor Burt, but Professor Finnegan has just telephoned that you are fifteen minutes late to your engagement to meet the great German savant, Herr Doktor Uffitz."

"But I didn't press the button, Miss Ordway."

"I know you didn't, Stevie, dear," Penelope spoke up, "but I did—accidentally."

Miss Ordway blushing withdrew. "Who is Professor Finnegan, darling?" Penelope wanted to know.

"Just a fictitious person Lanny and I invented to help rid me of nuts that stay too long, sweetheart. You don't have to consider him at all."

"I wouldn't, of course," said Penelope. "I'm queen here, am I not?"

[THE END.]

Noah Webster's "Best Seller"

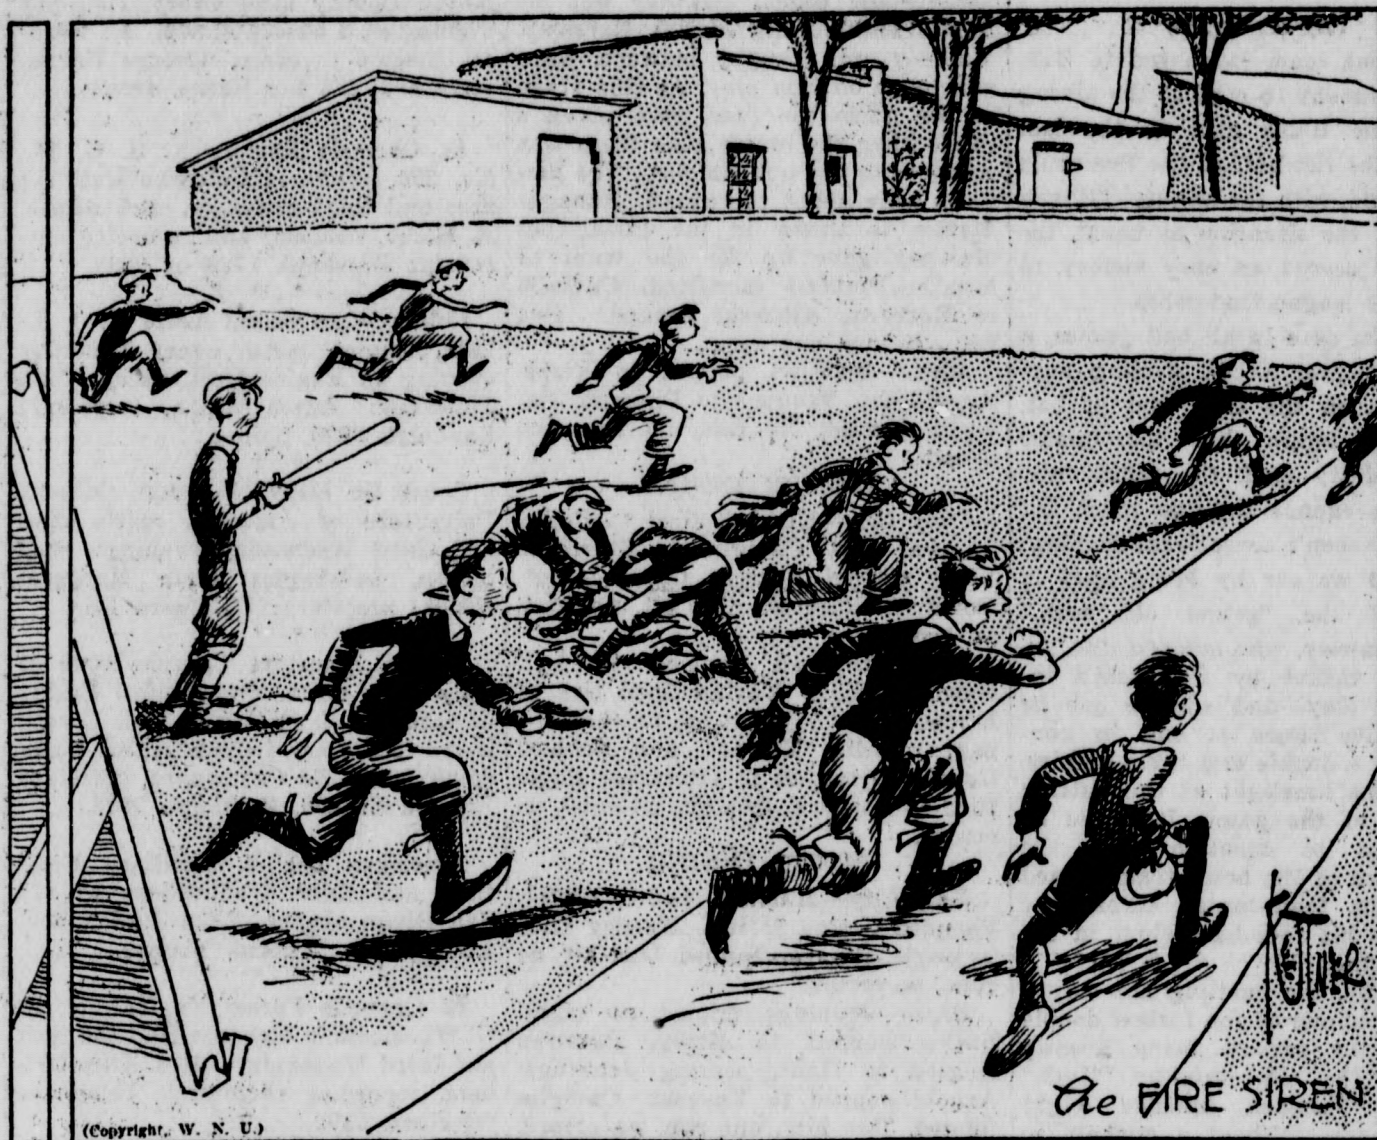

In 1783, Noah Webster published "A Grammatical Institute of the English Language." It was written in three parts: A spelling book, a grammar and a reader, observes a writer in Cosmopolitan Magazine. Webster's royalty, though less than one cent a volume, still must have been pretty handsome, for the book was the first of the American best sellers. Before the beginning of the Civil war it was selling at the rate of more than a million copies a year. Webster began work on his famous dictionary in 1807; it was published in 1828, and contained 12,000 words, and about 30,000 definitions that had not appeared in any other dictionary.

Snake Spits Poison

The snake which spits poison is the Egyptian spitting cobra. The mechanism of this spitting appears to be that by compression of the poison glands the venom is forced out through the fangs, and at the same time a blast of air is exhaled. This carries the liquid forward as a spray for a considerable distance, and if it strikes a person in the eyes, intense irritation is set up which results in temporary and sometimes permanent blindness.

I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear: but now mine eye seeth thee."

Simplification of Bank Checks

New York.—In a bulletin issued by the Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association, plans are described for carrying on the simplification of bank checks, notes, drafts and similar instruments in respect to size and uniformity of arrangement of subject matter.

Detailed recommendations for this end were formulated by the association about ten years ago, the bulletin says, and promulgated by the United States Department of Commerce among banks, business houses using large numbers of checks, commercial stationers and lithographers. As a result about 85 per cent adherence to the recommendations was brought about. The present bulletin, which describes the standard specifications in full, is issued to maintain this high level of adherence to the recommendations.

National Bank Notes

Changes in our money on the scale of about $800,000,000 are now going on through the retirement of national bank notes. This is reflected in increasing deposits in the Treasury of lawful money to replace bonds held against outstanding notes which will require some time for withdrawal from circulation.

The change in the currency will require a considerable shift of bank funds in many cases, but it is doubtful if so large a volume of currency has ever been retired and replaced in any country with so little disturbance.

SAM GOMPERS—LABOR LEADER

Devoted Practically Entire Life For The Benefit Of Workingmen

(By Maude Larue Ives)

The efforts of this American labor leader in behalf of organized labor made him a figure of great prominence during a long period of years. He was one of the organizers of the American Federation of Labor in 1881, and, with the exception of one year, served continuously as its president until his death. In 1921 he was elected to the office for the fortieth time.

Gompers was born in London, but emigrated to this country when he was thirteen years old. A year later he began his association with organized labor by becoming the first registered member of the Cigar Makers International Union. This organization became, through his efforts, one of the most successful trade unions ever existing. It was the policy of this leader to work along constructive lines and to promote industrial arbitration, and he used his influence to secure legislation favorable to the working people. It is worthy of note that he was almost the only labor leader of national influence in 1916 who advocated military preparedness for his country. During American participation in the World War, he heartily supported the government and exerted his influence against strikes. Later, in 1924, he went to Mexico City, after attending a convention in El Paso, Texas. On being taken seriously ill, he asked to be taken home that he might die on American soil. While en route, he died in San Antonio, Texas, on December 13.

Gompers lived between the years 1850 and 1924. Among the laws he framed, supported or originated were the eight-hour day law for employees; the various state laws fixing hours of labor; laws establishing Labor Day as the workingmen's holiday; the federal workingmen's compensation law; the law limiting the use of injunctions in labor disputes; the law exempting labor unions from prosecution as combinations in restraint of trade; and the law regulating punishment for contempt of court. He was also directly responsible for the legislation which created the Department of Labor as a separate department of the federal government, with a cabinet member at its head.

Throughout his career, with one exception, Mr. Gompers refused to become identified with any political party, taking the position that he could serve labor better outside of politics. In 1924, however, he endeavored to pledge the American Federation of Labor to the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette, Progressive nominee for president; but, notwithstanding his great influence, labor voted independently in that campaign.

PETITION ASKS FEDERAL GAS TAX END OF SOLONS

Plea to Congress Also Urges Termination Of Excise Taxes On Automobiles

Backed by twenty-two nation-wide organizations, a petition against re-enactment of the Federal gasoline tax of one per cent gallon has been presented to the President and to Congress. The tax is due to expire June 30. Besides urging an end to the federal gasoline tax the petition also seeks termination of excise taxes on automobiles, parts, tires and other products used in motor transportation. Excerpts from the petition are quoted by the motorists organization as follows:

"Motorists of the United States are now subjected to special, class taxation (in addition to their general taxes) amounting to approximately one and a quarter billion dollars per year.

"Since each state levies special taxes on motorists, special federal taxation on the same tax burdened class of citizens clearly constitutes unfair double taxation, and it is an invasion of a field which admittedly should be left to the taxing agencies of the states.

"In the case of the tax on gasoline particularly, the measure of a citizen's contribution to general federal governmental purposes is the distance which he is obligated to travel or to transport his products by motor. In the case of the farmers, the measure of his contribution under this tax is the distance he lives from market. Such yardsticks for measuring the amount of an individual's contribution to governmental expenses are so obviously absurd as to need no further comment.

"Both the finance committee of the Senate and the House have expressed themselves in opposition to the continuance of these unfair taxes.

"The oft repeated statement that special federal taxes on motorists are justified as a means of furnishing funds for federal aid in highway construction is entirely erroneous and unwarranted.

"Federal aid in road building is amply justified as a measure necessary for the national defense of all citizens—not merely the motorists. Federal aid is also necessary to facilitate distribution of the mails for the benefit of all citizens—not merely the motorist.

"When the principal of federal aid was inaugurated it was not the thought of Congress that it should ever be contingent on the imposition of special federal taxes on highway transportation.

"The placing of unjust burdens of taxation directly or indirectly on motorists and industries purveying products used in motor transportation is extremely unwise from a standpoint of national recovery."

IDEA FOR DALY CITY

An unemployed man has been making himself useful by hauling any tin cans and other refuse which is not properly classified as garbage, but which accumulates rapidly. He charges a small sum monthly, and calls once a week. He sometimes receives as pay old furniture, tools, etc., which he is able to repair and sell.
